SUCCESS LAKE DEVELOPMENT MOVES AHEAD

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 9 — Plans for commercial development on an 11-acre site adjacent to the Lake Success park area are moving ahead as George Neishi, of Fountain Valley, in southern California, moves closer to the actual "ground breaking" stage of the project.

Schematic site plan, as prepared by the architectural firm of Carmichael-Kemp, was released this week, indicating general layout for the area. Detailed plans, however, will be subject to needs of tenants who will operate the various enterprises within the development.

Plans for the site is a service station, a hotel and restaurant, a shopping center that will concentrate on items of a recreational nature, plus such other things as drugs and groceries.

The triangular-shaped site, located west of highway 190, is fronted by the highway; adjacent on the north is the entrance road to the Success lake county park; on the west lies the park and lake; just across the park entrance road is a county-operated, public trailer park.

Option to purchase the 11-acre site from CVR, Inc., of Porterville was announced last September by Mr. and Mrs. Neishi. Also interested in the development are Rodger A. Miller, of Burbank, and Ko Watanabe, of Dinuba, realtors.

Leases involving the various enterprises included in the development are now being negotiated, according to Miller.

The site has a 1,350-foot frontage on highway 190 and a 750-foot frontage on the park entrance road; it is the only privately owned property on the east side of the lake that is closely located to the major area of Lake Success.

Recently Neishi was in Porterville to again look over the property and to also check on development that would include a service station, a motel and dining room, a shopping center devoted primarily to items of an outdoor or recreational nature, and other facilities.

Final design will hinge on requirement of tenants who will lease the various units of the facility. Architects are Carmichael-Kemp of Los Angeles; land owners are Mr. and Mrs. George Neishi, of Fountain Valley; realtors handling the development are Rodger Miller, of Burbank, and Ko Watanabe, of Dinuba.

PETE EVERWINE, Ph.D.,

whose vocation is the rendering of folk music and the playing of the six and 12-string guitar, plus the five-string banjo, and whose avocation is teaching at Fresno State college, will appear in concert Saturday evening, January 11, Porterville Barn theater, starting at 8 p.m. Second guest star will be Jon Adams, late of the U.S. Army. There will be a slight consideration, payable at the door, to keep the Porterville Folk Music society in folk music. Needless to say, the public is invited.

Guitar Strummin' An' Folk Singin' At Barn, Saturday

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 9 — Fate of the Porterville Folk Music society hangs in the balance Saturday night when Pete Everwine and Jon Adams, singers of folk songs, are presented in concert at the Porterville Barn theater. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

As the situation shapes up, it would appear to society directors that if the Saturday night program "is as well attended as was the October gamble, you can be quite sure that the concert series will continue. If not, you will see the death of the shortest-lived organization in the history of Porterville."

But the Saturday night hoot should bring in lovers of fine music — fine folk music, that is, for Everwine, a professor at Fresno State college, is a virtuoso of considerable note, being accomplished on the six and 12-string guitars, as well as on the five-string banjo; he appeared at the Porterville College Folk Music festival last spring.

Adams also plays the six and 12-string guitars; he has performed at Sacramento, San Francisco and Monterey folk music centers, and, while in the U.S. army, toured the rice flats in various parts of

Editorial Comment

WE AGREE WITH HARRY TRUMAN

When New York International Airport, Idlewild, was recently rededicated as John F. Kennedy International Airport, Former President Harry S. Truman said that it was a fitting memorial, but that Americans, in their grief over the assassination of the late President Kennedy, are in too much of a hurry to rename things, "including the pups and cats. After things settle down we'll get the right one in the right place and that will be in Washington."

In the case of the late Mr. Kennedy, "the right one" must be preceded by some settling down, for the record of Mr. Kennedy as a president was never made and will never be known.

He was a capable, astute and sometimes ruthless politician without the occupational worry of many politicians — money; he had a tremendous personal appeal that went with youth, good looks, a brilliant mind; he was able to identify himself with "the people", whether those people were residents of Los Angeles, West Virginia or West Berlin, he put together one of the greatest political machines America has ever seen, electionwise, but he was unable to put together a machine that would move legislation through the congress; he faced momentous decisions as any president does and must — and like other presidents, he looked good on some, bad on others; he was a man who could turn an inspirational phrase, but his record as president showed that his words often spoke louder than his deeds.

So what was Mr. Kennedy? A good president, a great president, a poor president, another president?

By the record, not a great president.

What would he have been?

No one will ever know.

So let's let history, in its good time, write the verdict. And in so far as memorials are concerned, we might well heed the words of H. S. T. "After things settle down we'll get the right one in the right place, and that will be in Washington."

State Senator, Tulare County

This is the time of year when we all take stock. We look ahead, and back, and take the time to count our blessings. I would like to share with you one of the unexpected blessings of being in politics. It is the opportunity to see the total effect of the community activities of all the people in this County.

Because an elected representative travels a great deal in his district and is a sort of funnel for public opinion, he gets a clearer look at the people in his area than was possible to him when he was simply a farmer. And the picture I get of you people in Tulare County is one you should view with pride.

I wish you could have been with me this past year as I met and talked to so many of you. You could have seen all the good people who work so hard to improve our communities. You would have met young people like Sue Wilson of Tulare who works through her church and school to help others. They are a reminder of our fine children and of the future.

You could have seen how many interested and concerned groups of people continue to express through the years an enlightened interest in their own self government. The Garden club in Three Rivers that concerns itself with highway rest legislation, or the groups interested in conservation, or safety, are an important part of what makes democracy work.

The farm organizations working to improve the quality and quantity of their agricultural products are interested in the nation's economy as well as their own. We can be proud that Tulare county often provides statewide farm leadership in men like Allan Grant who has recently been elected president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and Bill Cosart who is president of the California Fruit Exchange, but there are also all the others. They contribute much to our towns.

When people like Ernest Dunn and J. B. Coffelt are honored upon their retirement, we are reminded also of the generally fine caliber of public servants who contribute to our communities. The teachers who serve our children so well also involve themselves in activities to improve their communities and to help others.

The service clubs for men and women and the many volunteer groups who aid those less fortunate are constant reminders that in this nation we are concerned about our neighbors.

Most of you are active in one or more of these groups. Sometimes we complain about our "over organized" society. These efforts do seem to be unique to our country and at times are a burden, but this is America at its best. We are a people who care about others, who wish for better things, who think about the future, and who are willing to work for solutions to our problems.

With people like this, it is easy to look forward to 1964 with hope and faith.

We have moved into our new District Office in Exeter. It is located at 124 South "E" Street and we will be open from 10 to 3. The phone number is 592-3571. We hope you will all feel free to come in at any time, or to call on us if we can help you in any way.

GUTHRIE TO SPEAK AT 4-H MEETING

BURTON, Jan. 9—Members and guests of the Burton 4-H club enjoyed a Christmas party, with Linda LaPresta chairman of the gay holiday event. Assisting Linda were Patty Ryan and committee in charge of refreshments, Bobby Alexander and his committee were in charge of games, and helping out in adult leadership were Mrs. Sam LaPresta, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Owen.

Gifts were brought by those attending to be given to needy families on the Indian Reservation as a special holiday treat. Dancing and games provided the evening's entertainment. Later in the evening refreshments were served from a gaily decorated table by the refreshment committee.

It was announced that at the January meeting members will hear John Guthrie, guest speaker, telling of his recent trip to Australia and New Zealand. Burton 4-H Club will be joined by Vandalia, Urbaneers, and the newly organized Lindsay 4-H Club for this meeting, set for January 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Burton School All-Purpose room. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

PORTERVILLE LIBRARY LISTS BOOKS

LOVE, LET ME NOT HUNGER, by Paul Gallico, is a story of the animals and men of a small circus left stranded and starving in a Spanish village. A handful of the circus people have stayed in the village after a disastrous fire, to care for the animals while the owner returns to England to collect the insurance. No money comes from him, so two of the troupe, acting out of profound love and concern, barter all they have — themselves — to buy food for the starving beasts. These two people are well worth knowing and the reader will not soon forget them: a girl from the English slums who has found the first home of her life in the circus, and a gentleman who is a marvel with animals. The animals, also, are made very appealing. One of Gallico's best.

A plane with 43 blind passengers (on their way to a Braille convention) crashes in northern Oregon. The novel woven around this predicament is titled AGAINST HEAVEN'S HAND, by Leonard Bishop. The sighted people aboard are all killed, and it is left to one of the blind men to guide the seven blind survivors out of the wilderness a cold, stormy, snowy wilderness). One of the women is about to give birth; one of the men is insane, food is very scarce. The development of this harrowing situation is handled with great artistry and the action and psychological strain build up in crescendos of suspense, to one climax after another. A completely absorbing, nerve-shattering story.

THE FIFTH QUEEN, by Ford Madox Ford, is a trilogy of novels ("The Fifth Queen", "The Privy Seal", and "The Fifth Queen Crowned") dating from before World War I and not published before in this country. The period of the stories is 16th century England, the setting the court of Henry VIII, the chief characters the king, Thomas Cromwell and Katharine Howard, the king's fifth wife, who is portrayed here as virtuous, devout and almost successful in bringing the King back to the Catholic Church. The book's great virtue, and its charm for collectors of Ford's works, is its (Continued On Page 3)

Time Out

RED-HEADED WIFE, INSTANT DEBT, MOTHER-IN-LAW AS CANASTA PARTNER

We are really a very simple man. Our needs are few and common. A bit of shelter against the sharp winds and wetness of winter. Shade in the blazing heat of summer. A scrap of bread when the pangs of hunger begin to gnaw. A few rags wrapped about our feet when the road is rough and thorny. A gentle hand on our fevered brow when the day has been long and the rewards small. And an occasional win in canasta. That's not asking for too much, is it? As meager as our needs are, some still escape us.

Seven years ago when we were married we acquired three things. A red-haired wife, instant debt, and our mother-in-law as a canasta partner. The first two we were prepared for, but the third has taken some getting used to. We think back and try to remember how we acquired the mother-in-law as a canasta partner. We can't remember any cash being involved in the deal. The father-in-law must have been taking advantage of his young and ignorant new relative.

The wife and the father-in-law are vicious hard-nosed card players. When they get you down they like to step on your neck. After losing to them you feel physically beaten. The wife shuffles and deals the cards like a Mississippi gambler. We made her quit wearing long sleeves when we play cards. The father-in-law figures he lost the game if he doesn't win by at least 2,000 points.

Listening to the wife and father-in-law during a card game is probably a lot like what the Roman Coliseum sounded like when the Christians were turned in with the lions.

The games are tortuously long and painful. The wife, being a crafty female, keeps the mother-in-law engaged in talk concerning dress patterns, grandchildren, and she-said-to-me-so-I-said-to-her talk. The father-in-law, playing like a short-stop, scoops all of the loose cards every time around. All of our massive and brilliant strategy is ruined. The mother-in-law looks up every few moments and says things like "Whose move is it?" and "King me." or I'll buy boardwalk."

After seven years of battering, it has gotten so that we feel faint and our hand shakes uncontrollably when we hear the riffle of cards being shuffled. But hope springs eternal in the human breast. Maybe next time. Wait 'till next year.

Rev. N. J.

At a dangerous railroad crossing an old flagman stood waving a lantern. One dark night he fell asleep. The rumble of an approaching train awoke him, and he began frantically waving his lantern. Too late! There was a terrific crash. In the lawsuit that followed the accident, the old man was closely questioned as to whether he was at his post at the time of the collision, and whether he was swinging his lantern.

To these questions, the flagman kept repeating, "I was there. I was waving my lantern." Some time afterwards, he was heard to say, "I was afraid the lawyer would ask me if my lantern was lighted."

Is your lantern lighted? Are your good deeds bringing glory to your brethren on earth and to your Father in heaven?

The Rev. H. O. Rowlands once said, "A clock may have excellent machinery, and its wheels may revolve with perfect regularity; but it is of no service to anyone unless it has hands to tell the hours of the day."

Your hands are important. They tell what kind of Christian you are.

We sometimes wonder where all the garden minded folk go when it's foggy and where they all come from when it's sunny. There must either be a lot of other things done during the winter or nothing else done during the spring.

With the days getting longer, and an occasional bit of sunshine showing through, the garden folk are appearing in ever increasing numbers. Up to now we haven't noticed that wild look in their eyes but we can see early stages of the disease. In fact we can almost guarantee that any day now you can expect to get up for breakfast and find your cook is out frantically tilling the soil while the coffee boils away on the stove.

We are preparing to treat this dread disease by stocking the shelves with spring garden supplies and filling the bins with luscious plants. For instance we have roses both old and new, fruit trees, flowering shrubs, bedding plants, and gladiolus bulbs. These will not only calm the savage beast but also beautify your premises.

Other prescriptions which we stock are pruning shears, dormant sprays, sprayers, repair parts, and garden books. Even though the malady isn't fatal it is wise to treat it immediately. So hide any cash you've been saving for a new fishing pole and bring her in soon.

Three Marooned for 67 Hours

Survival in Arctic Told

A young United Geophysical Corp. driller's helper at remote Foggy Lake camp on the Arctic Slope survived 67 hours in a snow vehicle with three companions this past weekend but froze his right heel.

He is Robert Board, 21-year-old resident of Porterville, Calif., in Alaska earning money to continue college.

Board was working about 12 miles from Foggy Lake with driller Bill Stone. Another rig was manned by driller Mel Lapard and helper Jay Harmon. It came time to close down last Friday when a storm came up and no one came out from camp to meet them.

The four started in but were stalled a short way from the drilling site.

The four spent nearly three days in the vehicle without heat before they were picked up.

Board was flown to Fairbanks on Monday where he is being treated at St. Joseph's Hospital. He is fine and expects to return to the Arctic. He had been in the Arctic for only two months, coming north last September and procuring his job in Anchorage.

Board said he was conscious he might freeze his toes and kept working them to keep circulation going. It was not until he removed his foot gear that he discovered his frozen heel.

He Missed His Camp by A Few Yards

The body of a man who apparently missed survival by a few yards was found Friday in the frozen Arctic.

The victim, Roy A. Gitzhoffen, about 54, of Los Angeles, was returned to Fairbanks.

He had been missing in the Arctic about 400 miles north of Fairbanks since Monday.

Officials said he refused to go aboard a plane Monday flying employees of an exploration company here for Christmas.

Gitzhoffen declined the trip when he could not take his luggage along due to weight limitations.

He had only to walk 100 yards from the remote air strip to the exploration camp.

He headed in the right direction but missed the camp by a few yards, according to authorities. He was found about a mile away.

Visibility was poor because of blowing snow and continual Arctic darkness.

Gitzhoffen was dressed in light clothing and the temperatures dropped to 30 degrees below zero.

A fellow employee of Gitzhoffen's, Robert Board, 21, of Porterville, Calif., is in St. Joseph's Hospital recovering from another Arctic incident in which one foot was frozen.

Board was one of the last to see Gitzhoffen before he disappeared Monday.

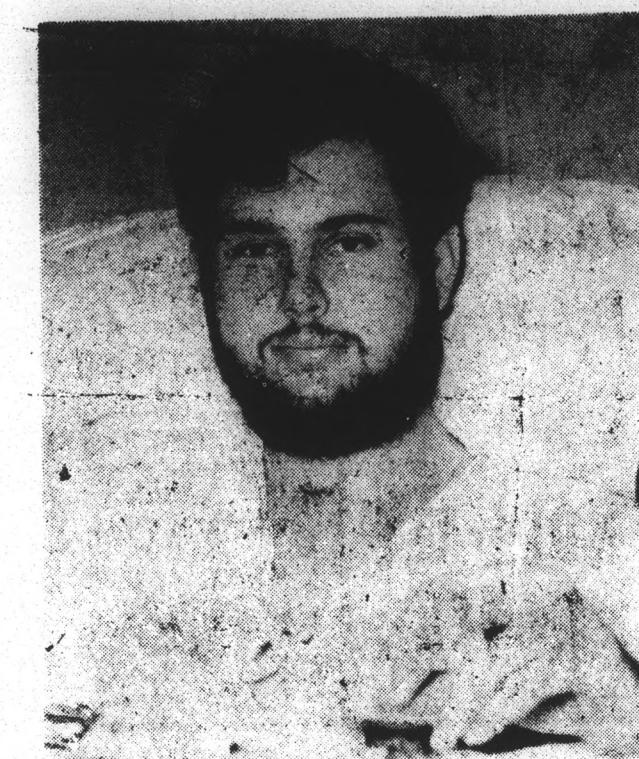

Gitzhoffen was dressed in light clothing — "a sports shirt, a sports jacket or a light coat, slacks and leather dress boots" — even though it was about 30 degrees below zero, said Board. Gitzhoffen also had a cap.

Gitzhoffen had been in Alaska about two years.

Board suffered a frozen foot last week end when he and three others spent three days in the Arctic wilderness when their snow vehicle broke down.

The exploration camp is about 90 airmiles northeast of Umiat in Northern Alaska.

RECOVERING—Robert Board, 21, is shown in St. Joseph's Hospital where he is recovering from an Arctic incident. He was a fellow worker of Roy A. Gitzhoffen who was found dead Friday about 90 air miles from Umiat.

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY OUT IN MARCH

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 9 — The Kings and Tulare counties telephone directory, which has been delayed by a San Francisco printing strike, is now scheduled for delivery in early March, according to Pacific Telephone Manager R. C. Board. The directory was originally scheduled for publication last November.

Although the classified portion of the directory has been closed for listings, Board said the deadline for making changes or additions in the alphabetical section of the new phone book has been extended to January 22.

Anyone wishing to change their listings in any way should contact the Pacific Telephone business office before that time, he said.

When the directory is delivered next March, it will contain both white and yellow pages as well as the usual four-color cover.

Pacific Telephone itself is not involved in the printing dispute. Its directories are printed by outside commercial printing firms under contract.

EDISON COMPANY EXPANDS OPERATION IN CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA BY MERGER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—Southern California Edison company and California Electric Power company were officially merged at midnight, December 31, according to Harold Quinton, Edison board chairman.

Yesterday's filing and recording of various documents in accordance with the laws of the states of California and Delaware climaxed a series of actions which started when the merger plans were first announced in April.

Regulatory approvals were received following public hearings in the spring and summer. Shareholders of the two companies voted approval of the merger at special meetings held on November 21 and December 16.

Southern California Edison company, as the surviving company, will now be providing electric service in 14 counties of central and southern California and two counties of western Nevada, Quinton said.

He noted that as the merger became effective, the expanded Edison company automatically passed three historic "benchmarks" commonly used in ranking utilities — total meters served, plant investment and generating capacity.

Callectric's 125,000 customers vault Edison past the two million mark in installed electric service meters. CEP's gross electric plant investment of nearly $200 million brings the total for the merged companies to well over $2 billion. With CEP's 486,502 kilowatts, Edison's total effective operating capacity soars past the 6-million-kilowatt mark to 6,110,162 kw.

Population served by the enlarged company is estimated at 6 million in an area of approximately 67000 square miles. CEP's service territory, with a population of 443,000, was located primarily in San Bernardino and Riverside counties, with some service included in Inyo, Eastern Kern and Mono counties and two Nevada counties, Esmeralda and Nye.

 Porterville High School Panther band could be hitting the bigtime with halftime shows at professional football games in Los Angeles if it were not a school code provision prohibiting high school bands from appearing in profit-motive, commercial enterprises. We are told that California high school bands you may have seen perform at recent professional football games get around the law by calling themselves by another name — a sharp practice that Buck Shaffer refuses to get involved in. It would seem that the state legislature might well get the restrictive provision out of the code, or see that it is enforced . . . Really, it isn't the job of schools to teach students how to "beat the rap"; and it would also seem that high school band members would not be greatly contaminated by appearing at a profit-motive, commercial enterprise such as a professional football game.

SO THAT man Barry Goldwater is in the race for the Republican nomination for president! This could be real good, for Senator Goldwater will, without question, draw the line, as he has been doing for years, between so-called conservative and liberal thinking, first within his own party as he contests Nelson Rockefeller, governor of New York, for the nomination, then later, if he is successful, against President Johnson. It has been many a moon since there was a real contest of basic principal between Republicans and Democrats on the national level. Barry will make the issue, and that's good . . . In fact we particularly liked this paragraph in his announcement speech last Friday: "I have always stood for government that is limited and balanced, and against ever-increasing concentration of authority in Washington. I have always stood for individual responsibility and against regimentation. I believe we must now make a choice in this land and not continue drifting endlessly down and down toward a time when all of us, our lives, our property, our hopes, and even our prayers will become just cogs in a vast government machine." . . . Barry's basic thinking has been accepted by many millions of Americans. His trouble may well lie in making these same people, and others, accept his specific answers to specific problems . . . But win, lose, or draw, Barry Goldwater would be a much needed shot in the arm for both the Republican and Democrat parties, for he will force clear-cut campaign issues.

ment of domestic water. Conferences with well men indicated that no major problems are involved in the development of water for the site.

Last September Neishi, Miller and Watanabe stated that a number of factors point toward rapid development of the Lake Success and Upper Tule River area. New freeways make Los Angeles only about three hours from Lake Success; highway 190 will eventually become a trans-Sierra route; increasing numbers of tourists are coming into the Sierra by way of the Tule river canyon to enjoy mountain recreation; new resorts are being developed in the mountains; the new River Island golf course has given a "new look" to former range land.

As for activity at Lake Success, official corps of engineer figures show that during 1963, cars coming to the lake totalled 19,069; June, 17,856; July, 15,796; August, 14,692; and September, 9,685. Average persons per car is estimated at 3.4.

MARY JAYNE, recording artist, TV actress and vocal soloist, will appear Sunday evening, January 19, at 7:30 o'clock, at the Nazarene church in Porterville to present a concert of religious music. The public is invited to attend. Her most recent record release is from Capitol - religious ballads under the title, "I Believe in Miracles." Previous to signing a long-term contract with Capitol, she had a number of record releases from Cornerstone records. Her singing career started in the popular music field.
